list of my sites

I am in the process of gathering my data from the numerous blog/web/text services I've signed up for throughout this past year (it's a lot). I've tested out so many platforms, 98% of them being free/freemium and I would be happy to review each site in the future. For the time being, I am using this note to mark down all websites I have signed up for. I believe that is the first step. I am a huge fan of web surfing; the number of note pages titled "links", "bookmarks", or just simply the date itself with a roll of various links is.. not surprising. I have so many resources I would like to gather in one place finally, especially since I've left database platforms like Notion, and have a complicated relationship with Pastebin, Notesnook, and whatever else my 2020 MacAir can handle.
